

THE CASTAWAYS OF THE FLAG

very rare, and the colony was not invaded' by gold-
seekers, who usually leave nothing but disorder
and misery in their train !

The marriages which united the Zermatt and Wofelon families have been blessed by heaven.

The grandparents will soon feel that they live again in their grandchildren. Only Jack is content with the nephews and nieces who clamber on his knees* He said he was a born uncle, and in that
relation was certainly a great success.

Though the island now forms part of the colonial
dominions of Great Britain, it has been allowed to retain its name of New Switzerland in honour of the Zermatt family.
